PROFILE

I am a fast learner and motivated. I work well with my team and communicate well with my colleagues. I learned to program primarily on my own during high school. The programming in addition to university is not only an obligation but also a hobby, so in addition to my studies regularly I develop myself using Udemy, Pluralsight and the official documentation. I program primarily in C#, but I'm familiar with Javascript and SQL. I have tried Python too. I did courses online and I have joined a self-educational course at the university. In this course we will learn modern frontend technologies during the summer with the help of a mentor.

I am also interested in the stock market and the economy, which I have read many books about it.
